Killing the Competition Martin Daly, 2017-07-05

Criminologists have known for decades that income inequality is the best predictor of the local homicide rate but why this is so has eluded them There is a simple compelling answer most homicides are the denouements of competitive interactions between men Relatively speaking where desired goods are distributed inequitably and competition for those goods is severe dangerous tactics of competition are appealing and a high homicide rate is just one of many unfortunate consequences

Killing the Competition is about this relationship between economic inequality and lethal interpersonal violence Suggesting that economic inequality is a cause of social problems and violence elicits fierce opposition from inequality's beneficiaries

Three main arguments have been presented by those who would acquit inequality of the charges against it that absolute poverty is the real problem and inequality is just an incidental correlate that primitive egalitarian societies have surprisingly high homicide rates and that inequality and homicide rates do not change in synchrony and are therefore mutually irrelevant

With detailed but accessible data analyses and thorough reviews of relevant research Martin Daly dispels all three arguments

Killing the Competition applies basic principles of behavioural biology to explain why killers are usually men not women and counters the view that attitudes and values prevailing in cultures of violence make change impossible

Olaf Kaltmeier, Edgardo Lander, 2023-06-02

Discussing the civilizatory crisis and processes of refeudalization this volume brings into dialogue two of the most creative approaches in

Olaf Kaltmeier and Edgardo Lander to rethink capitalism in the 21st century

In Part 1 Olaf Kaltmeier takes issue with the state of social inequality in the region highlighting the concentration of wealth within the upper 1% of society in Latin America

Comparing the current economic situation with the ancient regime the discussion centers around the new phenomena like billionaires as president increased luxury consumption an emerging culture of distinction and the intensification of land and spatial segregation

In Part 2 Lander urgently assesses the current state and political legacy of the Pink Tide governments in his essay Crisis of Civilization

Reviewing the past two decades of the new millennium Lander critiques the failure of these governments to provide alternatives to extractivism and economic dependencies Finally Hans J rgen Burchardt connects the arguments through interviews where both authors sum their efforts to open the issues to future dialogue Refeudalization in Latin America provides an accessible and thought provoking political diagnosis from the Global South which departs from the oft idiosyncratic and cyclical debates of the Global North to offer new vocabulary for social change It will interest scholars and students of global studies sociology and political science
