The Wounded Storyteller Arthur W. Frank,1997-05-15 Ill people are more than victims of disease or patients of medicine they are wounded storytellers Frank argues People tell stories to make sense of their suffering when they turn their diseases into stories they find healing Drawing on the work of authors such as Oliver Sacks Anatole Broyard Norman Cousins and Audre Lorde as well as on the stories of people he has met during years spent among different illness groups Frank recounts a stirring collection of illness narratives ranging from the well known Gilda Radner's battle with ovarian cancer to the private testimonials of people with cancer chronic fatigue syndrome and disabilities Their stories are more than accounts of personal suffering they abound with moral choices and point to a social ethic Frank identifies three basic narratives of illness stories of restitution chaos and quest Restitution narratives anticipate getting well and give prominence to the technology of cure In chaos narratives illness seems to stretch on forever with no respite or redeeming insights Quest narratives are about finding that illness can be transformed into a means for the ill person to become someone new Understanding these three narrative types helps us to hear the ill but ultimately illness stories are more Frank presents these stories as a form of testimony the ill person is more than a survivor she is a witness Schooled in a pedagogy of suffering the ill person reaches out to others offering a truth about living The truth is a starting point for a narrative ethics as private experiences become public voices Wounded storytellers teach more than a new way to understand illness they exemplify an emergingethic of postmodern times takes particular stories of exile and loss and constructs a memory around a Mosaic father figure embodying the native land Algeria Mona El Khoury argues that these filiation narratives create a postcolonial archive a discursive foundation that makes historical minorities visible while disrupting French and Algerian hegemonies El Khoury questions the power of literature to repair history while contending that these literary strategies seek to do justice to the dead Algerian father even as they valorize enduring minority identifications The Distressed Body Drew Leder, 2016-10-17 Bodily pain and distress come in many forms They can well up from within at times of serious illness but the body can also be subjected to harsh treatment from outside The medical system is often cold and depersonalized and much worse are conditions experienced by prisoners in our age of mass incarceration and by animals trapped in our factory farms In this pioneering book Drew Leder offers bold new ways to rethink how we create and treat distress clearing the way for more humane social practices Leder draws on literary examples clinical and philosophical sources his medical training and his own struggle with chronic pain He levies a challenge to the capitalist and Cartesian models that rule modern medicine Similarly he looks at the root paradigms of our penitentiary and factory farm systems and the way these produce distressed bodies asking how such institutions can be reformed Writing with coauthors ranging from a prominent cardiologist to long term inmates he explores alternative environments that can better humanize even spiritualize the way we treat one another offering a very different vision of medical criminal justice and food systems Ultimately Leder proposes not just new answers to important bioethical questions but new ways of questioning accepted concepts and practices The Forgotten Sage Maurice D.
