The Golden Hour. by Moncure D. Conway. Moncure Daniel Conway, 1862 A Practical Guide to the Study of the Diseases of the Eye Henry Willard Williams, 1862 Edwin Brothertoft Theodore Winthrop, 1862 The Sable Cloud Nehemiah Adams, 1861 Excerpt consistent with the interests of the colored people As to the extension of slavery in this land if the Most High has any further purposes of mercy for the African race in connection with us he will not consult you nor me He will open districts of our country for them if my political party refuses to be the instrument in doing this from benevolent motives or from any other cause He will make that party to be defeated it may be by a party below us in moral principle as we view it This question of slavery its extension and continuance is therefore among the great problems of God s providence I shall do all that I properly can to prevent it and to encourage and if called upon to aid my brethren now in immediate charge of the slaves to fulfil their solemn trust but anything like impatience and passion at the existence of slavery I hold to be a sin against God I pity those good men whose minds are so inflamed by the consideration of individual cases of suffering as not to perceive the great and steadfast march of the divine administration Politicians and others who get their places or their bread by easy appeals to sympathy for individual cases of suffering are the causes of much misplaced commiseration and of a low uninstructed view of the great interests involved in slavery Yet these very men who for selfish purposes stir up the passions

of our people by dwelling on cases of hardship in slavery are greatly disappointed when Napoleon III at Villafranca prematurely terminates a war of unparalleled slaughter They would have preferred for the cause of constitutional liberty and for its possible influence against the Pope that the fighting had continued a month longer we hear no pathetic remonstrances from them on the score of the killed and maimed the widows and orphans and the childless of homes made desolate by this additional month of battle Such is man so inconsistent so blinded by party prejudice so Margret Howth Rebecca Harding Davis,1862 Tragedy of Errors Mary Lowell Putnam,1862 Tales of a Grandfather Walter Scott,1861
