Want, Waste or War? Philip Andrews-Speed, Raimund Bleischwitz, Tim Boersma, Corey Johnson, Geoffrey Kemp, Stacy D. VanDeveer, 2014-11-13 In addition to environmental change the structure and trends of global politics and the economy are also changing as more countries join the ranks of the world's largest economies with their resource intensive patterns. The nexus approach conceptualized as attention to resource connections and their governance ramifications calls attention to the sustainability of contemporary consumer resource use lifestyles and supply chains. This book sets out an analytical framework for understanding these nexus issues and the related governance challenges and opportunities. It sheds light on the resource nexus in three realms: markets, interstate relations and local human security. These three realms are the organizing principle of three chapters before the analysis turns to crosscutting case studies including shale gas migration, lifestyle changes and resource efficiency, nitrogen fertilizer and food systems, water and the Nile Basin, climate change and security and defense spending. The key issues revolve around competition and conflict over finite natural resources. The authors highlight opportunities to improve both the understanding of nexus challenges and their governance. They critically discuss a global governance approach versus polycentric and multilevel approaches and the lack of those dimensions in many theories of international relations.

Environmental Change and Sustainable Social Development Sven Hessel, 2016-05-06. How does climate change affect social work and social development? What actions are needed to integrate the three pillars of economic development, environmental development and social protection? With global warming and the increase in natural disasters due to the emission of greenhouse gases, an alternative approach to the natural environment is vital. The main focus of this volume is to emphasize the person in environment concept and to find measures for its implementation. For social work, the environment has traditionally been viewed as a world of human relationships as opposed to the interaction between man and environment. This informative and incisively written edited collection brings together experts from around the world to analyze the person in environment concept and to find measures for its implementation. Through the presentation of theoretical and practical platforms for environmental social work or green social work, we hope to bring about a new paradigmatic shift in our attitude to the concept of person in environment.

Climate Risk and Resilience in China Rebecca Nadin, Sarah Opitz-Stapleton, Xu Yinlong, 2015-10-14. China has been subject to floods, droughts and heat waves for millennia; these hazards are not new. What is new is how rapidly climate risks are changing for different groups of people and sectors. This is due to the unprecedented rates of socio-economic development, migration, land use change, pollution and urbanisation, all occurring alongside increasingly more intense and frequent weather hazards and shifting seasons. China's leadership is facing a significant challenge from conducting and integrating biophysical and social vulnerability and risk assessments and connecting the information from these to policy priorities and time frames to developing and implementing policies and actions at a variety of scales. It is within this challenging context that China's policy makers, businesses and citizens must manage climate risk and build resilience. This book provides a detailed study of how China has been working to understand and respond to climatic risk such as droughts and desertification in the grasslands of Inner Mongolia to deadly typhoons in the mega cities of the Pearl River Delta Using research and data from a wide range of Chinese sources and the Adapting to Climate Change in China ACCC project a research to policy project this book provides a fascinating glimpse into how China is developing policies and approaches to manage the risks and opportunities presented by climate change This book will be of interest to those studying global and Chinese climate change policy regional food water and climate risk and to policy advisors     Adaptation to Climate Change through Water Resources Management Dominic Stucker,Elena

State of the World's Cities 2012/2013 Un Habitat, 2013-10-23 The city is the home of prosperity It is the place where human beings find satisfaction of basic needs and access to essential public goods The city is also where ambitions aspirations and other material and immaterial aspects of life are realized providing contentment and happiness It is a locus at which the prospects of prosperity and individual and collective well being can be increased However when prosperity is restricted to some groups when it is used to pursue specific interests or when it is a justification for financial gains for the few to the detriment of the majority the city becomes the arena where the right to shared prosperity is claimed and fought for As people in the latter part of 2011 gathered in Cairo's Tahrir Square in Madrid's Puerta del Sol in front of London's St Paul's cathedral or in New York's Zuccotti Park they were not only demanding more equality and inclusion they were also expressing the need for prosperity to be shared across all segments of society What this new edition of State of the World's Cities shows is that prosperity for all has been compromised by a narrow focus on economic growth UN Habitat suggests a fresh approach to prosperity beyond the solely economic emphasis including other vital dimensions such as quality of life adequate infrastructures equity and environmental sustainability The Report proposes a new tool the City Prosperity Index together with a conceptual matrix the Wheel of Prosperity both of which are meant to assist decision makers to design clear policy interventions The Report advocates for the need of cities to enhance the public realm expand public goods and consolidate rights to the commons for all as a way to expand prosperity This comes in response to the observed trend of enclosing or restricting these goods and commons in enclaves of prosperity or depleting them through unsustainable use The Report maps out major policy steps to promote a new type of city the city of the twenty first century that is a good people centred city One that is capable of integrating the tangible and more intangible aspects of prosperity and in the process shedding off the inefficient unsustainable forms and functionalities of the city of the previous century By doing this UN Habitat plays a pivotal role in ensuring that urban planning legal regulatory and institutional frameworks become instruments of prosperity and well being
