Law Javaid Rehman,Susan Breau,2007-07-30 Freedom of religion is a subject which has throughout human history been a source of profound disagreements and conflict In the modern era religious based intolerance continues to provide lacerative and tormenting concern to the possibility of congenial human relationships As the present study examines religions have been relied upon to perpetuate discrimination and inequalities and to victimise minorities to the point of forcible assimilation and genocide The study provides an overview of the complexities inherent in the freedom of religion within international law and an analysis of the cultural religious relativist debate in contemporary human rights law As many of the chapters examine Islamic State practices have been a major source of concern In the backdrop of the events of 11 September 2001 a considerable focus of this volume is upon the Muslim world either through the emergent State practices and existing constitutional structures within Muslim majority States or through Islamic diasporic communities resident in Europe and North America State-Religion Relationships and Human Rights Law Jeroen Temperman,2010 This book presents a human rights based assessment of the various modes of state religion identification and of the various forms of state practice that characterize these different state religion models This book makes a case for the recognition of a state duty to remain impartial with respect to religion or belief in all regards so as to comply with people s fundamental right to be governed at all times in a religiously neutral manner As this book demonstrates through the various case studies there is increasing interest and concern at the manner in which questions concerning the enjoyment of the right to the freedom of religion or belief bear upon key questions concerning the governance of democratic society Issues raised involve matters concerning employment education expression association and more generally the interface between religion and political life The existing literature often traces these concerns back to the need to consider the place of religion in contemporary society but leaves matters there Another body of academic literature explores the theoretical dimensions of that relationship but fails to connect it to the practice of states in order to test out the propositions which are the product of these reflections The great virtue of this work is that it seeks to unite these various enterprises and engages head on with the challenges which this produces The aim is to demonstrate and illustrate the key contention that there is an emergent right to religiously neutral governance and that this is incompatible with the continuation of systems which offer preference to particular forms of belief system religious or otherwise A chief virtue of this book is that it works through the consequences of this claim in a fearless fashion posing challenges for those states which continue to use their legal frameworks to offer support directly or indirectly for historical dominant or favoured forms of religion or belief It challenges received assumptions and by driving the logic of contemporary human rights thinking to the foundations of state religion relationships performs a valuable service for those engaging with this most difficult and timely of questions Malcolm D Evans Professor of Public International Law University of Bristol
