

Review of New Directions for Evaluation, Volume 106: Theorists' Models in Action

Chris L. S. Coryn

Western Michigan University—The Evaluation Center

The summer 2005 issue of New Directions for Evaluation, “Theorists’ Models in Action”, edited by Marvin C. Alkin and Christina A. Christie is, in part, inspired by the “Radnor Middle School” case study conducted in the early 1980s (Brandt, 1981). In the Radnor case study notable theorists including Scriven, Stake, Eisner, and Popham were asked to explain how they would evaluate Radnor’s humanities curriculum.

In this issue Alkin and Christie asked four contemporary theorists—Jennifer C. Greene, Gary T. Henry, Stewart I. Donaldson, and Jean A. King—to describe how they would evaluate the case of the “Bunche-Da Vinci Learning Partnership Academy.” The Bunche-Da Vinci Learning Partnership Academy is essentially a “unique partnership between the [school] district and a nonprofit educational company specializing in innovative school interventions for low-performing students” (Eisenberg, Winters, & Alkin, 2005, p. 5).

Jennifer Greene (2005) is the first theorist to tackle the Bunche-Da Vinci evaluation. Greene, as anticipated, takes a value-oriented (engaged) approach.

Theorists Models In Action New Directions For Evaluation:

Theorists' Models in Action Marvin Alkin, 2005-08-11 This volume analyzes how evaluation theorists apply their approach in practice A scenario of a situation at an elementary school is presented to four prominent theorists who describe how they would design and conduct an evaluation of the school's program The editors consider the theorists' proposed evaluations as well as their subsequent comments to develop themes related to the influence of theory and context on practice They also provide a comparative analysis of the theorists' evaluation approaches in relation to the context of evaluation case presented Evaluation theorists seem to be quite good at propounding on how they think the evaluation world ought to work Yet do we really know that what theorists say they would do in practice is indeed what they would actually do Evaluation after all is situational Each context offers its own constituency set of values programmatic elements bureaucratic hurdles and other variables This volume demonstrates why evaluators need to adapt their point of view to a particular situation and provides much needed study and analysis on the way in which they make those adaptations This is the 106th volume of the Jossey-Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Evaluation The SAGE Handbook of Evaluation Ian Shaw, Ian Graham Ronald Shaw, Jennifer C Greene, Melvin M Mark, 2006-07-27 In this comprehensive handbook an examination of the complexities of contemporary evaluation contributes to the ongoing dialogue that arises in professional efforts to evaluate people related programs policies and practices The SAGE Handbook of Evaluation is a unique and authoritative resource consisting of 25 chapters covering a range of evaluation theories and techniques in a single accessible volume With contributions from world leading figures in their fields overseen by an eminent international editorial board this handbook is an extensive and user friendly resource

RealWorld Evaluation Michael Bamberger, Jim Rugh, Linda Mabry, 2011-11-29 This book addresses the challenges of conducting program evaluations in real world contexts where evaluators and the agencies face budget and time constraints and where critical data is missing The book is organized around a seven step model developed by the authors which has been tested and refined in workshops Vignettes and case studies representing evaluations from a variety of geographic regions and sectors demonstrate adaptive possibilities for small projects with budgets of a few thousand dollars to large scale long term evaluations The text incorporates quantitative qualitative and mixed method designs and this Second Edition reflects important developments in the field over the last five years

Theory-Driven Evaluations Huey T. Chen, 1990-01-01 With the publication of Theory Driven Evaluations Huey Tsyh Chen has given us an ambitious volume Indeed it is the aspiration of this book to provide a conceptual framework that integrates the diverse approaches and paradigms of evaluation For those of us accustomed to the rhetoric of the paradigm wars that have been raging in recent years it is refreshing to find a text that works so assiduously at reconciliation There is much that is useful in Chen s analysis He gives us a full and thoughtful book that attempts no less than the construction of a conceptual framework for all of program evaluation It provides an impressive compendium of source material and references spanning not only evaluation but related work in economics and public policy this alone is worth the price of the book Chen s Theory Driven Evaluations provides a stimulating even heroic attempt to bring some conceptual integration to a field that has been too long dominated by methodological paradigms and procedural particulars a prepublication review for Evaluation and Program Planning Generous use of examples which are well selected and lucidly summarized Contemporary Sociology Chen introduces a new comprehensive framework for program evaluation that is designed to bridge the gap between method and theory oriented perspectives For program planners decision makers scholars and students this volume clarifies illuminates and provides unique insights into the conception construction and implementation of a wide range of programs The research examples used in the discussion draw upon various areas such as education welfare health criminal justice job training and family construction to attract a wider audience Journal of Applied

Rehabilitation Counseling Program evaluation has traditionally emphasized the application of social science research methods in evaluation activities. However, there is a growing awareness that program theory is vital for broadening the scope and enhancing the usefulness of program evaluation. In Theory Driven Evaluations, Huey Tsyh Chen introduces a new comprehensive framework for program evaluation that is designed to bridge the gap between the method and theory oriented perspectives. He provides an intensive discussion of the nature and functions of program theory approaches to constructing program theories and the integration of program theory with evaluation processes. Specific types of theory driven evaluations as well as principles and guidelines for application are developed for meeting different policy purposes. Application of systematic strategies is illustrated by concrete examples from a variety of evaluation studies in different fields. The presentation of this new perspective directly addresses the needs and concerns in both the professional and applied areas of program evaluation. For program planners, decisionmakers, scholars, and students, this volume will clarify, illuminate, and provide unique insights into the conception, construction, and implementation of a wide range of programs.

Consequences of No Child Left Behind on Educational Evaluation Tiffany Berry, Rebecca M. Eddy, 2008-04-04. This volume explores how key aspects of No Child Left Behind (NCLB) have transformed the landscape of educational evaluation and ultimately how this process is redefining what evaluation is within the educational evaluation community. In their chapters, the authors examine case studies, critical commentaries, and technical information related to the nexus between evaluation and NCLB. The volume is intended to stimulate conversation around fundamental issues in the discipline of evaluation, including blurring the lines among research, evaluation, and assessment; prioritizing summative evaluations over formative ones; using questions to drive research design rather than the reverse; balancing accountability requirements with other stakeholder needs; exploring the role of evaluation capacity building in an institutional setting; understanding the availability and appropriate use of assessment data; and defining learning outcomes that are based on standardized test scores alone. Evaluative activities have become integrated into the fabric of NCLB primarily through two core aspects of the legislation: responding to accountability systems and implementing scientifically based research. One plausible consequence of this close integration is that the purpose, design, and practice of evaluation may actually be transformed by this legislation. This volume describes these transformative influences and then explores the potential consequences. This is the 117th volume of the Jossey-Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Evaluation, an official publication of the American Evaluation Association.
