

THE READING WOMAN

Even today, when I read, I notice with pleasure when an author has chosen a particular word, a particular place, for the picture it will convey to the reader.

—Ruth Bader Ginsburg, My Own Words

Artists have long been inspired by the intimate love affairs between women and literature. Be it on the deck of a swimming pool, on the subway, or in their own library, reading women remain an inspirational muse for creators, classic to contemporary. The characters depicted in the months of this calendar come from all over the globe and range centuries in origin; perhaps the only thing they have in common is their dedication to the written word. Twelve scenes, paired with quotes from women about the importance and joy of reading, are reproduced in this calendar.

Screen Comedy and Online Audiences Inger-Lise Kalviknes Bore, 2017-06-14 The question of why we laugh or don't laugh has intrigued scholars since antiquity This book contributes to that debate by exploring how we evaluate screen comedy What kinds of criteria do we use to judge films and TV shows that are meant to be funny And what might that have to do with our social and cultural backgrounds or with wider cultural ideas about film TV comedy quality and entertainment The book examines these questions through a study of audience responses posted to online facilities such as Twitter Facebook review sites blogs and message boards Bore's analysis of these responses considers a broad range of issues including how audiences perceive the idea of national comedy what they think of female comedians how they evaluate romcoms sitcoms and web comedy what they think is acceptable to joke about what comedy fans get excited about how fans interact with star comedians and what comedy viewers really despise The book demonstrates some of the ways in which we can adapt theories of humour and comedy to examine the practices of contemporary screen audiences while offering new insights into how they negotiate the opportunities and constrictions of different online facilities to share their views and experiences

Sacramental Identity T. Ryan Dillon, 2024-04-01 Who am I A theology of personal identity and an answer to that question should be integral to any theological anthropology For some the answer is found in what many have called expressive individualism an inward turn toward the self and who and what I feel is most authentic to that self Christians respond that we are no longer that person we are in Christ But do either of these answers truly respond to the realities of both storied and embodied persons living out a life over time and change or the demand for an answer of stability throughout that endless change Sacramental Identity seeks to answer these questions by grounding personal identity in Scripture history and a rich theology of the sacraments of the church In a time where many are skeptical of the church's care for the embodied and storied realities of human life the sacraments invite us into the story of Christ and the church to discover who we are

Everyday Magic in Early Modern Europe Dr Kathryn A. Edwards, 2015-11-28 Experiences of magic and witchcraft in the early modern period have often been presented as extraordinary occurrences when they were from the perspective of people living during this period part of a shared and familiar cosmological outlook By presenting a range of everyday supernatural experiences from spirit assisted treasure hunting to magically assisted recipes this book will show the extent to which such incidents and the beliefs underlying them have common frames of reference and were accepted as legitimate if unusual practices
