The Recovery of a Contagious Methodist Movement Dr. George G. Hunter III, 2012-02-01 Methodism started out as a missional alternative to establishment Christianity but is now like the establishment Christianity it once critiqued In this book Dr Hunter asks whether enough New Testament Christianity exists in any institutional form of Christianity including The United Methodist Church to change the world If United Methodism is to survive it must recover bold directions in ministry in addition to Wesley's theological vision If only it was so simple as to stand on Wesley's shoulders to see our way forward This means that laity and clergy must be biblically informed spiritually energized and systematically organized If United Methodism is to thrive it needs to focus on mission recalling that early Methodism was an extravagant expression of missional Christianity Net membership decline is not from losing more people but from reaching fewer people than it used to The need for the gospel of Jesus Christ is greater than ever United Methodists must create structures and serve God and neighbor in order to spread as Wesley admonished scriptural holiness throughout the land George G Hunter III is Distinguished Professor of Church Growth and Evangelism at Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore Kentucky He is the author of several books including Radical Outreach and The Celtic Way of Evangelism both published by Abingdon Press The Recovery of a

Rendle, 2012-02-01 The lifeblood of the United Methodist is passion rather than organizational neatness entrepreneurial freedom rather than denominational restraint and agility rather than staid institutional dependence But if United Methodists want to change and be the church we say we want to be what must we risk and how can we challenge current practices At the heart of becoming a spiritual movement once again is the requirement that we develop a new understanding of connection as Christians and as United Methodists We are currently at a time in which United Methodists are reinventing denominational connectionalism One way of framing the issue is to distinguish between members and disciples or consumers those who wait for the institution to care for their needs and citizens those who are willing to commit themselves to and be held accountable for the whole of the community United Methodism has nurtured generations of leaders and congregations that see themselves as consumers of the resources and attention of the denomination The impulse toward movement is challenging spiritually purposeful leaders and congregations to risk becoming citizens who fully expect to make a difference in the lives of individuals and also in the world through an encounter with Christ Complexity, Adaptive Leadership, Phase Transitions, and New Emergent Order Bryan D.
