The Right To Have Rights Citizenship Humanity:

The Right to Have Rights Alison Kesby, 2012 Is it citizenship of a state or status as a human being that confers human rights on a person If a person is stateless how and in what way do human rights still apply to them This book addresses these questions in the context of international human rights law and the notion of the right to have rights The Right to Have Rights Alison Kesby, 2012-01-12 Writing in the immediate aftermath of the Second World War the political theorist Hannah Arendt argued that the plight of stateless people in the inter war period pointed to the existence of a right to have rights The right to have rights was the right to citizenship to membership of a political community Since then and especially in recent years theorists have continued to grapple with the meaning of the right to have rights In the context of enduring statelessness mass migration people flows and the contested nature of democratic politics the question of the right to have rights remains of pressing concern for writers and advocates across the disciplines This book provides the first in depth examination of the right to have rights in the context of the international protection of human rights It explores two overarching questions First how do different and competing conceptions of the right to have rights shed light on right bearing in the contemporary context and in particular on concepts and relationships central to the protection of human rights in public international law Secondly given these competing conceptions how is the right to have rights to be understood in the context of public international law In the course of the analysis the author examines the significance and limits of nationality citizenship humanity and politics for right bearing and argues that their complex interrelation points to how the right to have rights might be rearticulated for the purposes of international legal thought and practice Hannah Arendt and the Fragility of Human Dignity John Douglas Macready, 2017-12-20 Professor John Douglas Macready offers a post foundational account of human dignity by way of a reconstructive reading of Hannah Arendt He argues that Arendt s experience of political violence and genocide in the twentieth century as well as her experience as a stateless person led her to rethink human dignity as an intersubjective event of political experience By tracing the contours of Arendt s thoughts on human dignity Professor Macready offers convincing evidence that Arendt was engaged in retrieving the political experience that gave rise to the concept of human dignity in order to move beyond the traditional accounts of human dignity that relied principally on the status and stature of human beings This allowed Arendt to retrofit the concept for a new political landscape and reconceive human dignity in terms of stance how human beings stand in relationship to one another Professor Macready elucidates Arendt s latent political ontology as a resource for developing strictly political account of human dignity hat he calls conditional dignity the view that human dignity is dependent on political action namely the preservation and expression of dignity by the person and or the recognition by the political community He argues that it is precisely this right to have a place in the world the right to belong to a political community and never to be reduced to the status of stateless animality that indicates the political meaning of human dignity in Arendt s political philosophy The Right to Have

Rights Alison Gwendoline Kesby, 2009 The Right to Have Rights Stephanie DeGooyer, Alastair Hunt, Lida Maxwell, Samuel Moyn, 2018-02-13 Five leading thinkers on the concept of rights in an era of rightlessness Sixty years ago the political theorist Hannah Arendt an exiled Jew deprived of her German citizenship observed that before people can enjoy any of the inalienable Rights of Man before there can be any specific rights to education work voting and so on there must first be such a thing as the right to have rights The concept received little attention at the time but in our age of mass deportations Muslim bans refugee crises and extra state war the phrase has become the center of a crucial and lively debate Here five leading thinkers from varied disciplines including history law politics and literary studies discuss the critical basis of rights and the meaning of radical democratic politics today Grey Room , 2000 Grey Room is a scholarly journal devoted to the theorization of modern and contemporary architecture art and media Published quarterly it is dedicated to the task of promoting and sustaining critical investigation into each of these fields separately and into their mutual interactions The Human Body the Temple of God Victoria Claflin Woodhull, Lady Tennessee Claflin Cook, 1890 The human body the temple of God; or, The philosophy of sociology, by V.C. Woodhull and T.C. Claflin Victoria Claflin W. Martin, 1890 Middle East Report , 2004 Our War for Human Rights Frederick E. Drinker, 1917 About Women, about Human Rights Elizabeth Jelin, 1993 History of the World War for Human Rights Kelly Miller, 1919 Kelly Miller's History of the World War for Human Rights Kelly Miller, 1919 And Justice for All? Ian Balfour, Eduardo Cadava, 2004 Questions of human rights are among the most pressing and intractable matters at this historical moment If claims to human rights are by definition universal the formulation legislation and implementation of them tend to be significantly less than universal And Justice for All a special issue of SAQ examines the idea and the reality of human rights and their attendant discourses The essays gathered here from academics and activists working in law philosophy political theory literature medicine and ngos collectively interrogate these universal claims to human rights and the political justice that may or may not follow from them Grappling with the philosophical and theoretical questions at the heart of human rights these essays take into consideration current political configurations such as sovereignty genocide humanitarian intervention and the neglected domain of cultural rights the right to a cultural identity Drawing on Enlightenment thinking about human rights at the same time that they analyze the central concepts at work there including the humanity of man and the nature of rights or of law the contributors make a necessary intervention in a world system that Enlightenment thinkers could scarcely have envisioned Contributors Etienne Balibar Rony Brauman Wendy Brown Rebecca Comay Jacques Derrida Paul Downes Werner Hamacher Thomas Keenan Susan Maslan Jacques Rancière Bruce Robbins Avital Ronell Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak Elsa Stamatopoulou Slavoj Žižek Gender Politics in Latin America Elizabeth Dore, 1997 The essays analyze the gendered politics of state power language culture history social movements human rights and knowledge Hannah Arendt and Human Rights Peg Birmingham, 2006-09-29 The author explores the theoretical and social foundations of Arendt's philosophy on human rights Questions and issues surrounding Arendt's ideas of common humanity, human responsibility and natality are described The Rights of Non-citizens United Nations. Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, 2006

International human rights law is founded on the premise that all persons by virtue of their essential humanity should enjoy all human rights Exceptional distinctions for example between citizens and non-citizens can be made only if they serve a legitimate State objective and are proportional to the achievement of the objective Non-citizens can include migrants, refugees and asylum seekers, victims of trafficking, foreign students, temporary visitors and stateless people This publication looks at the diverse sources of international law and emerging international standards protecting the rights of non-citizens including international conventions and reports by UN and treaty bodies Human Rights in a Posthuman World

Upendra Baxi, 2007 This important new work reflects on the contemporary human condition in a posthuman and machinistic world almost overwhelmed by security concerns, terror and its politics and technoscience Exploring the role of human rights and development in such a world Baxi contends that any serious analysis of human rights theory and practice must confront two critical realities Firstly that the new world economic and military orders along with the continuing wars of and on terror adversely impact global social and human development policies and programmes Secondly that emergent technologies especially artificial intelligence, biotechnologies and nano technologies generating the discourse of the posthuman have serious implications for human rights The book presents a critique of the approaches towards a theory of human rights proposed by Amartya Sen and his emphasis on the ethical as opposed to the juridical nature of such rights It proceeds to examine the complexities and contradictions of the ideology of development and asks why there has been so little progress with regard to the right to development It explores how in the current world scenario the emancipatory potential of human rights may be carried forward in theoretical work and through activism Cosmopolitanism and Human Rights Sharon

Anderson-Gold, 2001 Cosmopolitanism and Human Rights presents an ethical foundation for the idea of human development and attempts to demonstrate the normative character of universal human rights The Politics of Human Rights Andrew

Vincent, 2010 The Politics of Human Rights provides a systematic introductory overview of the nature and development of human rights At the same time it offers an engaging argument about human rights and their relationship with politics The author argues that human rights have only a slight relation to natural rights and they are historically novel In large part they are a post-1945 reaction to genocide which is in turn linked directly to the lethal potentialities of the nation-state He suggests that an understanding of human rights should nonetheless focus primarily on politics and that there are no universally agreed moral or religious standards to uphold them they exist rather in the context of social recognition within a political association A consequence of this is that the 1948 Universal Declaration is a political not a legal or moral document Vincent goes on to show that human rights are essentially reliant upon the self-limitation capacity of the civil state With the development of this state certain standards of civil behavior have become for a sector of humanity slowly and painfully more customary He shows that these standards of civility have extended to a broader society of states At their best human rights are an ideal civil state vocabulary The author explains that we comprehend both our own humanity and human rights through our recognition relations with other humans principally via citizenship of a civil state Vincent concludes that the paradox of human rights is that they are upheld to a degree by the civil state but the point of such rights is to protect against another dimension of this same tradition the nation state Human rights are essentially part of a struggle at the core of the state tradition
