conversations between Film Studies and its contributory disciplines that not only defined a new field of discourse but also modified existing scholarly traditions. It reflects on the field's dominant paradigms and debates and evaluates their continuing salience. Threatened Masculinity from British Fiction to Cold War German Cinema Joseph Willis, 2019-05-30

The impact of the Cold War on German male identities can be seen in the nation's cinematic search for a masculine paradigm that rejected the fate-centered value system of its National Socialist past while also recognizing that German males once again had become victims of fate and fatalism, but now within the value system of the Soviet and American hegemonies that determined the fate of Cold War Germany and Central Europe. This monograph is the first to demonstrate that this Cold War cinematic search sought out a meaningful masculine paradigm through film adaptations of late Victorian and Edwardian male writers who likewise sought a means of self-determination within a hegemonic structure that often left few opportunities for personal agency. In contrast to the scholarly practice of exploring categories of modern masculinity such as Victorian imperialist manliness or German Cold War male identity as distinct from each other this monograph offers an important comparative corrective that brings forward an extremely influential century long trajectory of threatened masculinity For German Cold War masculinity lessons were to be learned from history namely from late Victorian and Edwardian models of manliness Cold War Germans like the Victorians before them had to confront the unknowns of a new world without fear or hesitation In a Cold War mentality where nuclear technology and geographic distance had trumped face to face confrontation between East and West Cold War German masculinity sought alternatives to the insanity of mutual nuclear destruction by choosing not just to confront threats but to resolve threats directly through personal agency and self determination cinema since the early 1970s The Film Handbook Mark de Valk, Sarah Arnold, 2013-05-02 The Film Handbook examines the current state of filmmaking and how film language technique and aesthetics are being utilised for today's digital film productions. It reflects on how critical analysis of film underpins practice and story and how developing an autonomous vision will best aid student creativity. The Film Handbook offers practical guidance on a range of traditional and independent guerrilla film production methods from developing script ideas and the logistics of planning the shoot to cinematography, sound and directing practices. Film professionals share advice of their creative and practical experiences shooting both on digital and film forms. The Film Handbook relates theory to the filmmaking process and includes documentary, narrative and experimental forms including deliberations on reading the screen, genre, mise en scene, montage and sound design, new technologies of film production and independent distribution, digital and multi-film formats utilised for indie filmmakers and professional dramas, sound design and music, the short film form, theories of transgressive and independent guerrilla filmmaking, the avant garde and experimental as a means of creative expression, preparing to work in the film industry, development of specialisms as director, producer, cinematographer, editor and the presentation of creative work Film, Philosophy, and Reality Nathan Andersen, 2018-12-21 Film Philosophy and Reality: Ancient Greece to Godard is an original contribution to film philosophy that shows how thinking about movies can lead us into a richer appreciation and understanding of both reality and the nature of human experience. Focused on the question of the relationship between how things seem to us and how they really are, it is at once an introduction to philosophy through film and an introduction to film through philosophy. The book is divided into three parts. The first is an introduction to philosophy and film designed for the reader with little background in one or the other subject. The second examines the philosophical importance of the distinction between appearance and reality and shows that reflection upon this distinction is naturally provoked by the experience of watching movies. The final part takes a close and careful look at the style and techniques of Jean-Luc Godard's groundbreaking film Breathless in order to illustrate how such themes can be explored cinematically. The book addresses topics such as Film: what it is and how to understand it; The methods and concerns of philosophy; The nature of cinematic appearances; The history of metaphysics; The relationship between cinema and life; The philosophical relevance of film techniques. With a glossary of key thinkers, terms and concepts as well as sections on suggested films and further reading, this textbook will appeal to lecturers and students in undergraduate philosophy and film courses and in courses focused on Philosophy of Film, Philosophy and Film or Film Philosophy European Cinema in Motion D. Berghahn, C. Sternberg, 2010-08-10 This collection brings together international experts on the cinema of migration and diaspora in postcolonial and postnational Europe. It offers a comprehensive theoretical and analytical discussion of a highly productive creative sector and documents the spectrum of this area of exploration in European transnational and World Cinema studies American Cinema's Transitional Era Charlie Keil, Shelley Stamp, 2004-07-12 This transitional era covered the years 1908-1917 witnessed profound changes in the structure of the motion picture industry in the US involving film genre, film form, filmmaking practices, the emergence of the studio system. The pattern which emerged dominated the industry for decades to come.
